

When Harry Wed Sally

When Harry and Sally first met, no one knew
That there was a potential couple in these two.
He needed a ride and she had the car
Who knew that this journey would take them so far?

Traveling together was hardly a breeze
He was a know-it-all, she tried to please.
Her restaurant orders drove him insane
His patronizing attitude was quite the pain.

When they arrived, they went separate ways
Finding jobs and partners for sharing their days.
Then, one day they met once again, just by chance
Their friendship resumed, though hardly romance

They relied on each other, giving advice
When one was unhappy, the other was nice
The friendship was flourishing, all was quite right
Until the occurrence of one fateful night.

Suddenly Sally's feelings grew strong
And she knew she loved Harry, it couldn't be wrong
But Harry grew frightened and he backed away
Leaving poor Sally in a state of dismay.

Harry himself was really quite blue
He missed his Sally more than he knew
He tried to make nice, but she told him, "no way"
And left him to wonder where he'd gone astray.

But once again fate intervened in her way
And brought them together at a New Year's soiree.
When Harry saw Sally, he knew it was love
And convinced her that this was a sign from above.

So let's celebrate on this fourteenth of March
As Harry and Sally stand under the arch
And pledge to each other their love from the heart
Together, forever and never to part.
